inspected yesterday previous to their depar-have presented a firmer sight than this famous battalion which has been doomed to disbandment, and there were many hopes expressed that the indefinite postponement necessitated by their going to Egypt, where it is known how long they will remain, will save them.

THE BRUNSWICK DUCHY.

DUKE OF CUMBERLAND'S POSITION.

BERLIN, September 26.
The Diet of Brunswick has passed a resolution inviting the Duke of Cumberland to sign his claim to the kingdom of Hanover and to assume the rulership of the Duchy. (Reuter.)

The Duke of Cumberland is the son of the second Duke, who was King George V. of Hanover, fourth brother of the Duke of Kent, the father of the late Queen Victoria. He is married to a sister of Queen Alexandra.
The last Duke of Brunswick was Wilhelm I., born April 25, 1806, the second son of Duke Friedrich Wilhelm and of Princess Marie of Baden; he ascended the throne April 25, 1831, and died October 18, 1884.

The heir to Brunswick is the Duke of Cumberland, excluded owing to the refusal to give up the claim to the throne of Hanover.
The dual house of Brunswick-Wolfenbtel, extinct on the death of Wilhelm I., was long one of the most ancient and illustrious of the Germanic Confederation. Its ancestor, Henry the Lion, possessed, in the twelfth century, the united duchies of Bavaria and Saxony, and other territories in the North of Germany, but having refused to aid the Emperor Friedrich Barbarossa in his wars with the Pope, he was, by a decree of the Diet, deprived of the whole of his possessions, the principal exceptions of Brunswick and Lüneburg. These possessions were, on the death of Ernest the Confessor, divided between the two sons of the latter, who became the founders of the lines of Brunswick-Lüneburg, Elder Line, and Brunswick-Lüneburg, Younger Line, the former of which was represented in the dual house of Brunswick, while the latter is merged in the royal family of Great Britain.

The Brunswick regency law of February 16, 1879, enacts that in case the legitimate heir to the Brunswick throne be absent or prevented from assuming his position, the Council of Regency, consisting of the Ministers of State and the Presidents of the Landtag and of the Supreme Court, should carry on the government, while the German Emperor should assume command of the military forces in the Duchy. If the rightful heir be a minor, the Council of Regency is enabled to elect the throne, the Brunswick Landtag shall elect a regent from the non-reigning members of German reigning families.

The Duke and Duchess of Cumberland left Copenhagen suddenly last week for Gaudens.
Their departure is generally believed to be connected with the Brunswick succession.
The Duke is said to be in the mood for compromise, but will only decide his attitude after a conference with his son.

"AL LEWA" AND THE SYRIANS.

KAMELS VITUPERATIONS

A very instructive example of the fanatical hatred of the organ of Mustafa Pasha, Kamel to all Christians is seen in the "Al Lewa" vituperation of the Syrians in consequence of the recent mutiny at Port Said. It was a very bad political stroke on the part of the Pasha's brother, who is the editor in the absence of the former, to manifest, so openly and at such a moment, that dislike of the so-called Nationalist Egyptian Press is not confined to the English and Europeans generally, but equally embraces every race who does not profess the Creed of Islam. It is of course obvious that it is fanatical, but it is at the bottom of the whole agitation, but this fact is carefully veiled by Mustafa Pasha Kamel, whose purpose it is to cloak the objects of the agitation by directing his attacks solely against the British Occupation.
But the fact should never be lost sight of that the crusade is really directed against all Christians, just as was the former nationalist outburst. Lord Milner in "England in Egypt" notes the fact:-

"As a matter of fact, the Arabist movement passed with frightful rapidity from a protest against the abuse of European influence to the present agitation, which is now in its full force; and it was passing at the moment when it was arrested into an attack not only upon everything European, but upon everything Christian. The eversmouldering hatred of Moslem for Copt had been stirred into flame, and in another month the half-million and upwards of native Copts of Egypt, including many of its richest and most intelligent inhabitants, would have gone the way of their hated rivals, the Syrians, and have swelled the list of the proscribed."

The fanaticism of the Nationalists is as comprehensive in its all-embracing character of Arabi Pasha. But it was a total "face pass" on the part of "Al Lewa" to make this fact patent to all the world just at the present moment, for it has given all the Syrians and Copts of Egypt an insight into the realities of the present agitation, which would not have been brought home to them by the most violent Anglophobe speeches of Mustafa Pasha Kamel. The matter has been taken up by the vernacular Press and the Coptic daily papers. "Al Watan," remarks:-

"We have certainly never seen calumnies so vile in its abuse, the denoting of the education of bawiness, and the total lack of education, as those which the journal 'Al Lewa' has divulged out of a propos of the Assyrian incident in accusing the Syrian soldiers of cowardice and low birth. This paper apparently thought that the soldiers who mutilated were Christians, and its shameless fanaticism found there another occasion to indulge in tirades.
If, however, it had the least good sense or intelligence, it would have known for all that that the Syrian soldiers are the real proof of Turkey, and that Syria has been known of Christianity, and its shameless fanaticism found there another occasion to indulge in tirades.
