GREAT IRISH VICTORY.

The War Correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph," writing from Chichester under date of Monday week gives the following interesting account of Iroland's victory over the British forces. —It has been a great day for 'Oireland's entirely. The British forces bave had a terrible cuities." As compile average actions to the compile of the com g." Are coming events casting a shadow Whether or not, the lesson conveyed what befalls the unready is obvious ound In this mimic campaign the invading dershot Army Corps, have easily scored and lete victory over the English forces, And complete vectory over the Buglish forces. And without straining judgment or conscience, the beginning and ending was as would be in acual warfare. Although there were two British Army Gorps being mobilized, they were not prepared to take the effensive, so an infantry division, under Colonel Scott-Kerr.

Behind he had a second line of def-nece along the Ridge may Down, which afforded him a serviceable means of intercommunication across his whole front. He had a hattery upon Wind mill Hill, as d another to the west, whitst upon the ridge road, or near, there was disposed his main artillery, field gons, howitzers, and heavy gens—the big 60 pounders. But I fancy the "Red" leader thought the blow to be driven home would fall mainly upon his right, scme where near Goodwood.

When "Blosie" cavalry, at 9.30 a.m. set.

"Red" laader thought the blow to be driven beene would fall mainly upon his right, some where near Goodwood. When "Blos" exvaly, at 9.30 a.m., est spors to their hor e', other gone galloped forward with the trooper. They plunged by bucky reads or lanes, ercrened from observation, and meeting with little on opposition, The few "Red" scorts were browned aid, and "Blos" swarly held straight upon their mission. Oh, for a battalion of riflenes, to have held them up and scattered them to the winds! But despite perfect signallers and field telegraph wires, there was just the usual incident of mischance, which has won and wrecked kingdoms and empires as well as mere men and women. Nature always fights on the side of the defence, but it follows that if there be neglect by the children of the land, an eemy may profit by nature advantages. What a well-marked countryside is this South land—a fat district, embroridered lavishly with bushes, woods, and noble parks. The bold South Downs and sentine foot-hills look upon the expanse of the glinting, dancing Channel waters. The infactly of the first "Blise" division. General Paget's, advance northward by Aldingbourne towards Schurtz Park, and westured as far at the Trundle by Goodwood. Moving in the low ground, they quickly cume into constact with Red": in antry extended sent of Windmill Hill. A few more 'Red" cavalry would have long the day an ideal one for getting sphesicial results from his troopers and Royal Hursa Artillery. For over two hours the contending infactry fought arount Halansker Hill, a hillowy nalpand, surmounted by a picture que, rimade vindmill. There was a mourful suggestion of the mighty gibbat about the uneany thing. The disputated wheel hang with the skeletons of the investment of the mighty gibbat about the uneany thing. The few Grentdiers who he'd Halusker had a red fisg, which in licated that some two companies of men were manning the old Roman earth wall and the ruined mill. Their battery blazed way and the ruised mill. Their battery blazed way at a section of the infantry and the rquadron of Lancers who stopped to engage their attention, whilst their commands robde urseen to the north. Paget brought a battery to bear upon Windmill Hill from the south, by Boggrove, and the rquadron of Farriers with the battery opened upon it from the east. Ris fis rose and fell at times, hricking in full chorus in the woods. But parsimony stultifies in many modes the soldiers efforts to leave. hes in many modes the soldiers' efforts to learn in field mar covers the leason of war. "OTHER EDTOR OF THE "EDITTAM GARRYTE" SIT.—Cannot comething be done to improve the quality of the salt useally purveyed which is more tasteless than any I have ever used in England or upon the Continent! Would it be too much to ask the authorities that they should test its quality and insist upon its being up to a cortin standard of strength! It was imagined at the time when the price was reduced last year that the too generous concession granted by the Government, when they it deprived itself of working its own salines for the next twenty years, sould be an indecement to the Egyptian Salt and Soid Company to provide the public with the and indecement to the Lindows of the entire of the control of

EGYPTIAN POSTAGE.

To the Editor of the "Egyptian Gazette."

Sir.—No one roote than myself is more willing to acknowledge the enormous progress which the Egyptian Postal Administration has whing to schnowledge the enormous progress which the Kyyptian Postal Administration has made under the guidance of our admirable Portmaster General, Sabe Paiha. However, I should like to make a few suggestions on this Administration as I am sore they will be taken in good part by his Escellency. For example, the letter postage from England is four farthings for one half onnee and less. But from Egypt to Regland it is four farthings for one half onnee and excess charge of one farthing per half onnee as against Egypt. At first sight that may appear very small, but when one comes to one concer one penuy, and so forth. The percentage must be common and the discrimination against this country must therefore be very great. Why should this be the case! It was understood in England when the rate was reduced that it England when the rate was reduced that it aboutd this be the case! It was understood in England when the rate was redood that it would be reciprocal, and this I believe to be the care throughout the Empire, wherever penny postage has been introduced. The argument that the small plastre consisting of five millicmes is the unit of coinage might possibly be brought forward by some in vertch of an excess. But this will hardly hold water when we remember that the postage in Cairo is three millièmes.—I am, Sir, Your
