EGYPT AND ABYSSINIA.

The Council of Ministers on Tuseday last approved the statutes of the Bank of Abysninis, which has been founded under the egis of the National Bank of Egypt. The establishment of this bank under direct Anglo-Repristantiance is an event of extreme political significance, for banks are quite as useful as ministerace is a nevent of extreme political significance, for banks are quite as useful as ministerace in a statutes comes most opportunely, as in a few days time the Abysninian convention between the British, Prace, and Italy, while asfaguarding the British, Prace, and Italy, while asfaguarding their several interests without infringing the exceeding the sevent series of the work of the sevent of the work of the work of the sevent of the work of t

THE NAVAL BATTLE.

DESCRIPTION OF FIGHT.

ADMIRAL FOELKER-HAM KILLED.

6,000 RUSSIANS DROWNED.

Ionion, June 1.

The correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" with the Japanese Fleet reports from Tokio that as the Russians steamed up the Bashie Channel the Japanese vessels, which were so disposed as to enflude them simultaneously from the front and both fanks, maintained the same position as the Russians moved north. The fire was terrible: the Russians at first returned shot for abcb, but at two colock the increasing confusion showed that they were practically defeated. Between three and five a cruiser of the "Admiral Nakimoff" class and the "Kamchata" foundered, and the Russian line broke in utter disorder. The Japanese then closed up, dividing the Russians into a number of detached squadrons and pressing them towards the Nagoto coast.

When night arrived swarms of destroyers and torped-boats were let loos, and the battleships and cruisers also kept up a merciless fire. The night's work resulted in the sinking of the "Imperator alexander III." "Oalyaby.", "Navarin," "Ural," and three guiboats.

With dawn the Jananese came still closer.

boats. With dawn the Japanese came still closer and the battle raged with unabated fury during the whole day. Here the message breaks off. (Reuter.)

TOTAL JAPANESE LOSSES.

Tokto, June 1.

Admiral Togo reports that the total Japanese losses are under 900. The battleship "Gisson Valiki," the cruiser "Admiral Nakimoff," and the "Monomand," and no Sunday morning while they were drifting helplessly near Tsu-Shima. The Japanese cruisers and coast vessels rescued 1,000 men.

It is estimated that there were ten thousand men on board the surkner vessels of the Baltio Squadron, four thousand of whom have been rescoed, but it is fasted that most of the remainder have perished. Many bodies are being washed ashors. Admiral Focklersahm was killed on the 3Tth inst. in the conning-tower of the "Oulyabya," while directing the squadron. (Reuter.)
